

From a very young age, Craig Cupani's fondest memories were of dinners in the family kitchen. An American Italian home, the kitchen was the center. After graduating from the highly acclaimed Culinary Institute of America in 1988, Craig worked his way through the ranks and landed the famous "21" Club and from there it was on to Butterfield 81, as the Executive Chef, then on to such first rate restaurants as Tabla, Brasserie, and Patroon in Midtown.

Hartsdale, NY was the next stop with the opening of his own establishment. Lia's, named after his daughter, and rocketed to success with a three star review in the NY TIMES. Cupani's creative style and innovative spins on Italian classics made Lia's Hartsdale's favorite.

Now at the Glass House Tavern, Craig's culinary skills shine in the New York Theatre District. The menu has been developed to satisfy the varied tastes of the mixture of cultures abiding among New York's finest theatre sites.
