

Susan Vassallo Murtagh

Kings Park High School Class of 1979, Susan Vassallo Murtagh represents a lifetime of relationship with "words". Whether written or spoken, Sue has followed the usage of "words" into her high school dream of being involved in communications. After graduating from Marist College she followed in her father's footsteps and joined Grumman Corp. where she served as a writer before moving and moved up through the ladder of added responsibilities. She managed Grumman's Media Relation Group.

She presently serves as Director of Corporate Communications at Henry Schein, Inc., the largest distributor of health care products and services in the world. A recognized communications expert, she is also committed to bettering the communities where she works and lives, and serves as executive committee member and co-chairperson on the communications committee for the Center for Disease Control and Prevention's, National Immunization Program.

She communicates to the world promoting Schein Cares programs that service under-served populations to enhancing disaster response and relief efforts around the world. Long Island Business News recently named her among Long Island's Top Women. She has taken "words" and used them in a rich and rewarding manner. It has all turned out to be a lifetime of success, of which her husband, Bill, and her five children are a big part of the mix.
